

U. S. Citizens Told to Stay Out of Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans should stay away from Cuba unless they have compelling reasons to go there, advises the State Department.

The statement Friday came on the heels of another State Department suggestion that wives and children of American residents in Cuba—other than those stationed at the Guantanamo Bay Navy Base—should be sent back to this country.

The department said American tourists had asked whether they should travel to Cuba now, in view of Prime Minister Fidel Castro's anti-American campaign and the advice the department had given on American dependents.

The department said, "It is believed prudent to advise U. S. citizens to refrain from travel to and within Cuba unless there are compelling reasons for such travel."

It said some businessmen might have compelling reasons.

The American Embassy at Havana said 57 Americans have been detained by Cuban authorities since Jan. 1, either on no charges or on charges filed long after their arrest.

The government released a diplomatic note that had been rejected by the Cuban government, as violating "norms and elemental principles of diplomacy."

The U. S. note was in protest over seizure by Cuba of three American-owned banks in Havana. It said the Cuban government's stated reasons for seizing the banks "recall only too vividly the statements which characterize the fraudulent propaganda of international communism."

The forced note also said Cuba's rejected expropriation of American property is "discriminatory, confiscatory and arbitrary."

Anderson Is Acquitted in Spa Shortage

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Circuit Judge Henry B. Means Thursday set a directed verdict of acquittal for Hot Springs attorney Sam L. Anderson, who was charged with compounding a felony.

Anderson was charged in connection with the case of former Garland Tax Collector Ray Owen, who was sentenced to a one-year prison term for a $21,000 shortage in his official accounts.

The money has since been repaid.

Judge Means told the jury of 10 men and two women the prosecution failed to present sufficient evidence.

Following the one day trial, Anderson issued a statement which said "It has been my contention from the time the indictment was rendered against me that it was in fact strictly political. I feel that the outcome of the trial has proven to the people of Garland County that what I have said is the truth."

Prosecutor Walter Hebert had no comment.

In his opening statement to the jury, Hebert charged that Anderson told Owen last January he would not disclose information about the shortage if Owen would resign.

Defense attorney C. Floyd Huff maintained that Anderson was responsible for the investigation and subsequent repayment of the shortage.

Means heard the case after Garland Circuit Judge P. E. Dobbs disqualified himself.

ARJANS — Clear to partly cloudy and through tomorrow.

BAD OLD DAYS—It looks like twenty years ago in Nazi Germany as Hermann Goering and Josef Goebbels talk together in Hamburg. Hitler's henchmen impersonated by Werner Bistrum, left, and Willi Krause for the new American film "Trial by Treason." Bistrum is a local hotel receptionist picked for the part because of his remarkable resemblance to Goering.

Thinks Demos Will Carry Farm Vote

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A Prediction that the Democrats will carry the farm vote because of the strong agricultural plank in the party platform has been made by the Arkansas officials of the Farmers for Kennedy-Johnson organization.

Rufus C. Branch of Junior and Loyd Godley of Osceola, both farmers, made the prediction at a Democratic organizational meeting here Thursday.

Branch, who is state director of Farmers for Kennedy-Johnson and Godley directs the organization's campaigning in Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Florida.

"The farmers will carry the election for the Democrats," Godley said. "Farmers are thoroughly disgusted at being sold down the river under the Republicans. The farm people need to realize this one fact: Agriculture never has been prosperous in any Republican administration and it has been prosperous under every Democratic administration in this country."

Branch said his organization would name chairmen in each Arkansas congressional district and county, and would distribute campaign literature to as many farmers as possible.

Annual Letter Writing Oct. 2-8

The 23rd annual Letter Writing Week will be celebrated in Hope during the week of October 2 to 8, it was announced today by Postmaster Robert Wilson.

Postmaster Wilson noted that there has been a revival of personal letter writing during the last few years. "A letter remains the most economical, longest lasting and sincerest means of extending greetings, communicating social news, and exchanging ideas," the Postmaster said.

During Letter Writing Week, Postmaster Wilson suggested that individuals write at least two letters: one to a friend or relative from whom you have not heard in a long time, and the second as a reply to a friend or relative who recently wrote to you. He also urged correspondence to people in other countries as a means of promoting greater understanding among the people of different nations.

The slogan of this year's event, as indicated on more than 200,000 bumpers, is "Letters are Links to Friendship." The display materials will appear on post office bulletin boards, and rural carrier vehicles, as well as in various schools and libraries.

Tractor-Trailer Crash Is Fatal

BLACK ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Leo Turner, 25, of Billings, Mo., died in a crash of his tractor-trailer near this Lawrence County town early Thursday.

The vehicle, loaded with feed, smashed into a bridge abutment and fell into a creek.

Ike Placed on Spot by Neutral UN Delegates

BY RELMAN MORIN

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — President Eisenhower faced a painful decision today, posed by a neutralist resolution in the United Nations, urging him to meet Premier Khrushchev in brass-tacks talks on ending the "threat to the world."

He may make up his mind after a conference with Britain's Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in Washington Sunday.

Prior to the neutralist maneuver, White House officials said there was little or no likelihood that Eisenhower would agree to see Khrushchev. The American position has been that the RB47 case, with the imprisonment in the Soviet Union of two crewmen from the downed plane and Khrushchev's insults to the President closed and locked the door to any meeting.

But the question now is: How to say "no" to the call in the U. N.?

Eisenhower has consistently said he would do nothing in his power to remove the threat of nuclear war. And it has been obvious, since this session of the U. N. General Assembly convened, that many delegates hoped the leaders of the two most powerful nations would meet.

American diplomats called a weekend strategy session to examine the dilemma. But the final decision is in the hands of the President, they said.

Khrushchev masked his attitude on the matter behind a slab of cheese cake.

Newsman taken with him at a reception given by the Afghanistan delegation. They asked him whether he would head the neutralist resolution and agree to see Eisenhower.

He forked a big piece of cheese cake into his mouth and said: "This is very delicious pie. While I'm eating, I am deaf and dumb."

Since his arrival in New York, he has appeared to be adamant—not on whether he would see Eisenhower—but that the President must take the initiative for any meeting. He takes the position that the U2 spy plane and the RB47 case make it impossible for him to make the first move.

At the reception, and a dinner later, the Soviet premier appeared to be gloomful—possibly indicating that he feels the neutralist resolution squeezes Eisenhower.

American officials declined to speculate on whether the President would yield to the resolution.

It came in the form of a letter to Frederick H. Boland, Irish president of the General Assembly. The heads of five nations signed it, Nehru of India, Sukarno of Indonesia, Nasser of the United Arab Republic, Tito of Yugoslavia and Nkrumah of Ghana.

Sukarno introduced it, Nehru moved to place it on the agenda before the Assembly. There were no objections. Next week, the general debate will be interrupted consider the resolution.

U. S. Agents Crack Down on Gamblers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sudden midweek strike by tax agents against gamblers brought 93 arrests and confiscation of 12 automobiles and more than $10,000 in cash.

Adding up the result of simultaneous raids Wednesday in 38 cities and 22 states, the Internal Revenue Service said today it had hit 62 gambling locations, doing up to $80,000-a-week business.

The betting operations were hidden under a variety of blinds, the IRS said, including smoke shops, barber shops, haberdasheries, taverns and in one case, a radio and television store in the shadow of the United Nations building in New York.

The busiest spot found by agents was an all-sports betting book in Huntington Park, Calif., a suburb of Los Angeles. Cash receipts and other evidence indicated a $80,000-a-week operation.

The IRS said.

In all cases, local authorities participated with the federal agents in the raids.

Gambling itself is not a federal offense but federal law requires professional gamblers to buy a $50 tax stamp and pay 10 per cent of their gross revenue in taxes.

Now China Wants 'Co-existence'

MOSCOW (AP) — Communist China's ambassador here was quoted today as saying that his country will work for peaceful co-existence, a view that departs from recent Peking philosophy.

The Communist party paper Pravda printed a statement by Liu Shao, the Red Chinese ambassador, at a celebration Thursday night marking the 11th anniversary of communism's takeover in China.

In recent weeks, Moscow and Peking have been split over which way to implement Marxist doctrine—the Soviet Union favoring peaceful co-existence and Communist China declaring that only war will advance communism.

First Time Delegation Head Heckle

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev rose to his feet today and shouted during a speech by Britain's Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. It was the first time the head of any delegation let alone the head of a government—ever had stood up in the General Assembly during a fellow leader's address to heckle or protest. Assembly delegates seemed shocked.

Stalking out of the hall after the Macmillan address, Khrushchev brusquely brushed newsmen aside snapping: "I will give my comment when the time comes."

Macmillan was presenting a three-stage program designed to prepare the way for gradual political action toward resumed arms negotiation and agreement. The British leader also raised the suggestion that the world's people hoped the break at Paris would be just temporary and there might be another try at a summit meeting of the heads of state.

NEW YORK (AP) — A stepped-up demand for seats prompted National Airlines today to substitute a larger plane than the one originally scheduled to fly from Havana to New York Saturday.

Requests for space increased after the State Department recommended that American residents in Cuba send their wives and children home.

The department said it acted because of the continued harassment of Americans by the Cuban police, U. S. Embassy employees began sending families home six weeks ago.

The airlines will use a 107-seat, four-engine Constellation for the flight from Cuba. The craft will substitute for a 74-seat DC7. The flight is No. 850, scheduled to leave Havana at 10 a. m. Saturday and arrive at Idlewild Airport at 3:40 p. m.

An airlines spokesman said the flight was completely booked, as is a DC7 flight at the same time Sunday. A larger plane probably will be used on the Sunday flight also.

Ex-Official Fails to Report to Pen

CUMMINS PRISON FARM, Ark. (AP) — A prison official said Ray Owen, former Garland County tax collector, had not reported here today to begin a one-year term imposed on him in connection with a now-repaid shortage of some $21,000 in official accounts.

Owen testified Thursday at the Springs on Sept. 15. At the time he was given two weeks to wind up personal affairs before entering prison.

Owen testified Thursday at the trial of Hot Springs attorney Sam L. Anderson on a charge of concealing a felony in connection with the Owen case, Anderson was acquitted on a directed verdict.

Counties Call for More Poll Taxes

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Nine counties, all but one in north Arkansas, have asked State Auditor Jimmie Jones for additional poll tax receipts forms.

The counties, and the number of additional forms asked, were: Baxter 600; Washington 4,000; Benton 1,500; Boone 600; Bradley 600; Independence 300; Madison 1,200; Seaway 600, and White 300.

Saturday midnight is the deadline for paying a poll tax to qualify as a voter by Oct. 1, 1961.

Story From the Washington Telegraph Recalls Incident of 100 Years in the Past

By MARY ANITA LASETER

(Thanks to C. L. Stuart for the following information)

The Washington Telegraph, for many years the oldest weekly newspaper in Arkansas, was so well known by so many that it didn't come as a surprise when publication of it was not suspended during the Civil War. It seemed perfectly natural that the paper family was not stopped by a mere paper shortage; the publication was sometimes printed on the back of wallpaper.

Of course, such was not the case in 1915, but on Friday, May 14 of that year, the Washington Telegraph printed an article of historical significance that cast light on the memories of Washington in 1860 (before the wallpaper era).

Hon. John G. B. Simms, great uncle of Paul Simms, wrote from Lake Village: "On May 5, 1860, a day of just it, attended by Capt. William Moss (Nato; an ancestor of Mrs. William Elder), I was enlightened from an old four-horse stage coach, about sunset, in the old town of Washington, where I purposed spending my life, and growing up with the country. The trip for me was a memorable one, as I had never before been a hundred miles from my native birth (heartily) at the Blue Ridge Mountains, in Virginia."

"From Memphis we took a steamer to DeWitts Bluff on White River, where we got a slow train to Little Rock, over the only railroad track then in the state. After a night spent at the Anthony House, we left next morning at four o'clock this city of 5,000 people for our 36-hour drive to Washington. When we reached the Hubbard Hill, across the town branch, the driver sounded his horn and began to touch up his jaded horses, and when we had climbed the old sandy hill, well toward its top, he got them into a swinging trot, and all eyes turned toward the stage, which was named 'Whod-a-Thought-It'."

The arrival of which was the principal event of the day in this secluded old town.

"I had come under contract with my uncle, Capt. Simms, T. Simms, clerk of the courts for 30 years, where I was to learn business forms, preparatory to a study of law. The old clerk's office, a one-room frame building, stood on the corner of old Court Square, well shaded by several large catalpas, then and perhaps now, the leading shade trees in the place. Here I worked and slept for 18 months, or until I took my place in the ranks of those engaged in the great struggle which then followed. My salary was the princely sum of $50 per year, and board with my uncle. These were happy days! What I may now write will be in memory of the people and events with which I was familiar."

The writer goes on to recall people like Jesse A. Ross and Billy Wilson, both young lawyers in the clerk's office with him. At the battle of Oak Hill were his two brothers, Montcalm (Paul Simms' grandfather), who was killed, and Tom, who was wounded. The writer himself was a member of the Hempstead Rifles, at first not allowed to fight because of their youth but later called into action.

Simms recalls, "The first company was commanded by John H. Gratiot. The flag was presented to it by Miss Bettie Conway (ancestor of Mrs. A. K. Holloway and Mrs. F. Y. Trimble), afterwards Mrs. George Taylor, in a very pretty address, which was delivered to the company drawn up in line in front of Andrew Johnson's store, on Main Street. Gratiot, I remember, told the people that he would lead where few would dare to follow."

Other names mentioned in the account written by the Hon. Simms were Dan W. Jones (later, governor of Arkansas), Penn Jett, George Taylor, and James P. Erwin, all members of the Hempstead Rifles. His final tribute stated, "Old Hempstead made a showing unsurpassed by any other county in the state for patriotic devotion to the cause we loved."

Rep. Mays Heads Rules Committee

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Cleveland Rep. Raymond L. Mays will be chairman of the powerful House Rules Committee in the 1961 Legislature.

This was announced Wednesday by Prairie Rep. John P. Bethell, who claimed the House Speaker's post after a campaign with Little River Rep. Marion H. Crank.

Red Premier May Leave Oct. 12

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials who have been speculating about how long Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev would stay in New York now believe he might depart for North Korea Oct. 12.

Apparently some Soviet authorities concerned with arranging Khrushchev's movements are privately talking about his flying to the Far East around that time.

3-Cornered Power Clash in Laos

By ROY ESSOYAN

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma and the army strong man who put him in power, clashed today, giving a Congo-like cast to Laos's three-cornered civil war.

Capt. Kong Le, the paratrooper who overthrew a pro-Western government last month and replaced it with Souvanna's neutralist regime, refused to recognize a cease-fire order issued by the premier through King Savang Vatthana.

Souvanna challenged and declared "Kong Le has no say in military decisions." Their bitter opinions were voiced in separate talks with newsmen.

Kong Le charged in a blistering interview that Souvanna is too soft in his conduct of the war against rightist rebel Gen. Phoumi Nosavan—of both the government and the Communist-led Pathet Lao.

"I don't care about the cease-fire," the captain said. "We will keep fighting until the Phoumi men surrender. Souvanna is too soft. If we stop fighting, they will attack us."

Although the rebel general is due to take up the political phase of peace talks with government authorities this weekend at Luang Prabang, the royal capital, Kong Le declared his forces will keep pushing until they capture the Phoumi headquarters at Savannakhet. That town is on the Mekong River 180 miles southeast of Vientiane, the kingdom's administrative capital.

With the nation running short of essential supplies, the captain threatened to go over the premier's head and ask for aid from the Communist bloc as well as from the West.

The premier hit back when advised of the captain's words.

The neutralist leader announced that his government has taken steps to establish diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union. He said it has suggested that the Soviet ambassador to Cambodia be accredited to Vientiane and that the Laotian ambassador to France be accredited to Moscow.

Urges Building of More Churches

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas Methodists in their first statewide gathering since the state was made a separate Episcopal area, were urged to increase church-building and "personal evangelism."

Bishop W. Kenneth Pope, named last summer when Arkansas and Louisiana were divided into separate episcopal areas, outlined his goals for the next four years at a one-day rally Wednesday.

He urged "dynamic discipleship" by individual Methodists and also called for construction of more urban churches to replace those being abandoned in rural areas as the population shifts to cities.

$169 Million Set to Speed Polaris Missile

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has marked an extra $169 million for the fiscal 1961 spending much of it will go toward speeding up development of the Polaris submarine missile.

Democrats have accused the administration of refusing to spend a large part of the $66.6 billion voted by Congress in addition to the administration's $40.8 billion defense budget for the current fiscal year. But the administration has denied Democratic charges that the extra funds were frozen.

A Defense Department spokesman said that after Friday's allocations, a $274.7 million of the extra defense money "appropriated by Congress still is not earmarked. He said the subject is under review by top officials."

He also emphasized that the new funds cleared for spending were approved by the Bureau of the Budget, an arm of the White House.

Democratic critics have accused the Budget Bureau of pinching pennies on defense spending to the detriment of national security.

Much of the new money will be for stepping up production of the 1,200-mile Polaris missile and cease-fire order issued by the premier through King Savang Vatthana.

The total added to the Polaris program was $107.5 million, including $30.8 million for production of the present missile and $76.7 million for the longer range one.

The Samos spy satellite program got $33.8 million, was earmarked for Army modernization and $2.4 for the Army National Guard.

U. S. Planning More Curbs Against Cuba

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is considering the use of economic sanctions in its deepening conflict with the Cuban government of Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

These plans, calling for export controls on a limited number of items, may follow up a U. S. decision Thursday night to close down the $10-million nickel processing plant it owns and operates in Cuba's Oriente province.

The World War II plant, opened steadily since the Korean War, now employs or contributes to employment of 2,800 Cubans, who presumably will lose their jobs.

The State Department said the operation has been harassed by the Castro regime and subjected to what it called "confiscatory" taxes due to go into effect Saturday. "The Cuban government rejected a U. S. offer to pay 'a reasonable tax' on nickel shipments from the plant, the department said."

There were these other developments indicative of the tightening of the Cuban situation:

1. The State Department said all American men in Cuba are being advised to send their wives and children back to the United States to avoid harassment by Cuban authorities.

2. The Castro government, in a new diplomatic rebuff, refused to accept a U. S. note protesting nationalization of American-owned banks in Cuba.

Although both the nickel plant closure and the proposed export controls would affect the Cuban economy, there was no direct relation between them.

While details have not been disclosed, indications are that machinery for oil refineries and chemicals used in the refining process will be brought under the export control system.

Such actions would hamper Cuba's operation of U. S. oil refineries. It has seized and is using to refine crude oil obtained from the Soviet Union. Oil experts say the Soviets cannot provide replacement parts to rite American-built machinery.

Couple to Honeymoon in Co. Jail

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Twenty-year-old Nancy L. Arendt and Clyde L. Long, 28, probably will spend their honeymoon in the place where they met—Pulaski County Jail. And in separate cells.

Their romance blossomed in cells eight feet apart, with only limited communication through a wall separating the men's and women's sections of the jail.

Most of the courtship was through the jail's "grapevine" with fleeting glimpses in hallways. Head Jailer Joe Borghetti said Borghetti took them to apply for the marriage license Wednesday. They expect to be married Tuesday, but will be returned to their cells, Borghetti said.

Sheriff L. C. Young Sr., Circuit Judge William J. Kirby and Harry C. Robinson, the woman's attorney, chipped in for the $3.00 license fee.

Long, a parole violator, has 10 months to serve; plus a one-year sentence he received Wednesday on a grand larceny charge. Miss Arendt is scheduled for a hearing Oct. 10 on an overdraft check charge.

Kirby said, however, he might suspend the sentences of both prisoners "as a wedding present."

2 Escape Jail at Hamburg

HAMBURG, Ark. (AP)—Two prisoners, one of them barefoot, escaped Wednesday night from the Ashley County Jail here.

Sheriff B. A. Courson identified the fugitives as Kenneth Willis, 29, of Fountain Hill, being held for rape, and Billy De Hart, 21, of Snyder, held for disposing of mortgaged property.

Courson said the two sawed through bars of their cell with a hacksaw blade and fled about 8 p.m.

De Hart was barefoot; Courson said.

He's Trying to Sell Her a Box Full of Trouble

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen:

I'm going with a boy I'm crazy about. Our only problem is sex. He believes if I love him that petting is all right. We disagree on the meaning of adultery. He says it means being unfaithful to your wife or husband. I thought it also meant going all the way before marrying. Who is right? What are the limits of petting? My mother has always told me to watch my step because a boy would tell you anything to get you to go all the way. My boyfriend said she probably told me that so I would be scared, which I am.

He said if I think he is going with me for that one reason, he would break with me so fast I wouldn't know what had happened. I am 16 and have two more years of high school. After that I plan to take a business course before I settle down to raise a family. —Mixed-Up

Dear Mixed-Up: Your boy friend is trying to sell you a box full of goods. With it goes a box full of trouble which he doesn't mention. Petting is the down payment.

Once you permit him to kiss and cuddle, you're opening up that trouble box. Being young and inexperienced, you'll never be able to shut it.

Your boy friend is right about the definition of adultery, however Webster says it means unfaithfulness of a married person, and adds that "under the English common law adultery is not a crime but is a subject of ecclesiastical censure only." However, in certain states in the United States, it is a crime.

Dear Helen: We thoroughly enjoy your clean-cut, straight-forward advice and so often discern tenderness, compassion and grave concern for your correspondents and their problems.

If only more of us could remember that passage in the Bible from I Corinthians, VII verse: "And now abideth faith, hope and love, these three; but the greatest of these is love."

I enclose the copy of a favorite poem, "Teach me to Love." The following lines prompted me to share this precious poem with you:

"I want to bring them comfort and relief, To put my hand in theirs, and at their side Walk softly on, a faithful, fear-less guide."

—Elizabeth Hardin

Dear Mrs. Hardin: Thank you for your inspiring thought and poem.

Memo to Y.D.: Reading between the lines, certain things are apparent. You and your husband do love one another. He is still an adolescent. You have developed into a mature woman. You take life seriously, he takes it lightly.

THE STORY: Paolo Macdougall, American officer with the Italian underground, is planning a second try to land carrier pigeons on a desolate stretch of beach near Rome. On a previous attempt they were interrupted by a German patrol.

Chapter XI

The next Sunday evening, at six o'clock, Giovanni nodded to Paolo and Luchino across the Caffo Ruschena to let them know the doctor was waiting outside. With no more than a casual exchange of good evenings, Luchino and Paolo climbed into the back of the car, and Giovanni sat in front with the doctor. They might well have been waiting for a card game at the house of friends — because in March, 1944, any Roman driving a car, or for that matter any group of four men in a public place, was a matter of suspicion and concern to the occupying forces.

The procedure at the German roadblock on the Via Aurelia was thorough. Fortunately, the revolution had been left at the farm, and a search of the car as well as a close scrutiny of all four identity cards did not arouse doubts in the officer and one soldier who examined them. It was the special German diplomatic laissez-passer which seemed to be the deciding factor in their being allowed to go on.

They drove out the Via Aurelia making small conversation and laughing but with their eyes pinned on the road ahead for signs of another roadblock.

"Where's the other fellow? We were to be five," the doctor remarked.

"He has gone ahead by bicycle," Luchino replied and, turning to Giovanni, added, "There will be an extra hike for you to come back on."

At the farm, Luchino was relieved to hear from Tullio Rossini that Cicco and Martina had arrived late Saturday afternoon, safe and sound.

"I put them with a peasant family of ours. They're safe there fit into the landscape. How's my father doing in Rome?"

"Oh, he's fine. Is the pen in order for the pigeons that are arriving tonight?"

"Yes. Would you like to see it?"

No, but I tell you what I would like to see. Your father told me that you have an excellent place where you hide Allied escapees, and our people on the run. Things are going from bad to worse in Rome; we may need it."

Behind bushes and shrubs massed on the north of the house was a small iron grille. This Tullio unlocked and led Luchino down narrow steps to the old wine cellar converted into a two-room hide-out; he lit a candle stuck in the neck of an old wine bottle. "Four or five people could hide here — if no one found the entrance."

As they climbed out and locked up after themselves Luchino said, "Tullio, I'd like you to keep Cicco's boy here, but the old man we can send back to Rome tomorrow on one of the bicycles. I shall need him there. Giovanni will take the other one. Can you fetch Cicco now? We are going to use him tonight. I want to explain to him where to go on the bicycle and wait for us."

"Do you trust him for a job like this?"

"I trust him for any job. I've been over it with your father. He agrees with me. We must post a sentry toward the highway."

"Why couldn't I come, Luchino?"

"We mustn't leave this place uncovered. You can never tell when one of the Tuscan guides will bring in some Allied escapees. Thanks, but I really think Cicco will do — and your place is here."

"I'll go get him now."

"And get me two of those red Italian hand grenades — you still have some, don't you?"

"Oh, yes. A box full of the nasty little things. I'll go now."

Later they drove off without even the blackout lights, but the stars were bright enough to show the yellow dirt road. A few yards before the actual crossing, the doctor brought the car to a full stop and turned off the motor.

On the far side they entered a dirt path which met the lane they had used the week before. As they entered the lane, someone in the bushes struck a match.

"That's my man — his signal," said Luchino. "If anyone suspicious passes him he will throw a grenade at them. That will call the party off."

They drove on to the spot where the doctor had parked his car before.

Paolo collected and passed to the doctor the identity cards and

Kennedy Picks Harris on Committee

WASHINGTON, D.C. (Special)—Sept. 29 — Congressman Oren Harris has been appointed by Sen. John F. Kennedy to his natural resources advisory committee, the democratic presidential candidates' headquarters announced here Wednesday.

"I am particularly glad to have Congressman Harris on this committee, because of his special interest in water and conservation problems," Senator Kennedy said.

The committee will have an important role in the campaign clarifying the issues in this field, which has been regarded and neglected by the Eisenhower administration. The committee will then make the recommendation for an action program on natural resources for policy administration."

Harris said he had discussed our water projects and the problems of the southwestern area with Senator Kennedy.

"We are both convinced," Harris said, "that real progress can be made toward this solution un-anything that could lead to the identification of Luchino and Giovanni. With the doctor's whispered, "Good luck!" they set out for the beach. Finally they came to the spot where Gigi had been killed the week before, and instinctively drew together. Giovanni held up his fingers in the V-sign to reassure his companions.

Paolo motioned to the others to stay where they were while he climbed to the top of the dunes. In front of him, across the beach, the sea was clearly visible and so calm that the path of a planet shimmered in the water. He looked at his watch. It was five minutes past two.

Nasser Invites Ike for Visit

NEW YORK (AP)—President Gamal Abdel Nasser has invited President Eisenhower to visit the United Arab Republic as his honor or guest.

Diplomatic informants who reported this today said Nasser extended the invitation Monday to Eisenhower during their 70-minute conference.

Nasser is reported to have told the President he would be welcome as a visitor either before or after he leaves the White House next Jan. 20.

Both men got along very well during their conference, authorities said. Nasser made it clear he backs the United Nations and appreciates the peacemaking efforts of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld.

This Nasser view apparently puts him at odds with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, who has demanded that a veto-wielding three-man presidium replace Hammarskjöld.

Department Store Sales Dip Some

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Department store sales in the Eighth Federal Reserve District last week averaged four per cent lower than the corresponding period last year.

The decrease was shared by all reporting cities except Louisville, Ky., which showed an increase of one per cent.

The downturn averaged an estimated twelve per cent at Memphis, Tenn.; eight per cent at Little Rock, Ark.; and two per cent in the St. Louis area and seven of the district's smaller cities.

District sales were down an estimated five per cent for the four weeks that ended last Saturday, as compared with 1957. District sales for the year to date are same as for the similar period 1957.

One out of every five West Germans enjoyed a vacation trip during the 1958-59 travel season.

Vote Hearing Is Set for Monday

DES ARC, Ark. (AP)—A hearing is scheduled next Monday on an election contest suit filed by J. T. Gunter of Austin in his campaign against state Sen. Jerry Screeton of Hazen.

The hearing in Prairie Circuit Court was set Wednesday after a conference of opposing attorneys.

Screton was the approval winner of the nomination, but Gunter filed suit asking that some Prairie County boxes be thrown out. Screton responding by challenging some votes in Lonoke County, Gunter's home.

Thought for the Day

Neither human applause nor human censure is to be taken as the test of truth, but either should set us upon testing ourselves. Whately said it.

Calendar of Events

The Church of God in Christ will hold Baptismal service at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, October 2, 1960.

All candidates are asked to be present

The public is invited, Elder O. N. Dennis, Pastor.

Rev. Timothy Wyatt and Evangelist Christin Williams will be in service at Bethel A. M. E. Church

Friday night, September 30, at 7:30 p.m. In the interest of the Women's Day Rally which will be held at Bethel, Sunday October 16.

This service is being sponsored by Mrs. Fannie Alexander, Rev. J. S. Morgan, Pastor.

Birthday Dinner Mrs. Epps

Local Citizen Exhibits Honesty

Mrs. Inez Cannon of the Green Leaf Cafe believes that honesty is the best policy.

She found a billfold containing more than a $100.00 in the post-office Tuesday, September 27, belonging to Mr. W. E. Bruner, who had just left it there. When she went out onto the street, she met Mr. Bruner, who was understandably upset. She showed the billfold to him and asked if it was his. He answered yes and took it, and walked off.

Boosters' Club to Sponsor Alumni Queen

The Yergers Boosters' Club held its regular meeting at Club TV Tuesday night, September 27, with fifteen (15) members present.

BOAT BUILDING GOES ON PRODUCTION LINE

By WM. TAYLOR MCKEOWN Editor Popular Boating Distributed by Newspaper Enterprise Ass'n.

TORONTO (NEA) — Aircraft engineering has come down to earth to improve pleasure boats for next year. Old building methods have been streamlined for a new line of cabin cruisers scheduled to appear next spring.

The boats will range from 28 to 46 feet long and will have conventional lines. But they will be made of planked aluminum. Long strips of the metal will be screwed in place just as a wooden plank would be. Each will be sealed in place with the new wonder adhesive, thickol.

There is nothing new about aluminum boats. Some craft made from this metal over 30 years ago are still in successful service, and aircraft forming techniques have long been used to build them.

After the war, surplus aircraft metal was bought up for boat building, and almost gave the field a bad name. Metals that can't fly through the air may not do so well in salt water. Some of these early surplus material models were almost dissolved by corrosion.

All aluminum used in boats today is a special alloy called 6062. Magnesium mixed in makes the material virtually corrosion-proof. It also makes possible this new cruiser line of light strong craft that will require minimum maintenance. And the planking of the metal is a major construction breakthrough.

Two firms well known in their own fields will cooperate on the project. The Richardson division of United Marine, a quality American boat builder of wooden cruisers, is supplying its plans. Avco Aircraft of Canada, long famous for its aircraft, will employ its massive stretchers, forming presses, heat treating ovens, and production lines to turn out the hulls.

Cabin house and interior arrangements will still be built of wood in the States by Richardson, and in a hands-across-the-friendship arrangement, the cruisers will then be assembled for sale in the United States and Canada as well.

Boats have never been built just this way before, but neither have such elaborately tooled production lines been available for aluminum hull construction. Riveted small boats and a few welded larger ones have been turned out in this metal in the past.

The complete boatbuilding circle has been turned when boats are to be produced of metal planks screwed to metal ribs just as they once were of wood, but more cheaply and rapidly than ever before.

Pope Is More Patient Than the Artist

By JULES LOH

NEW YORK (AP)—The Pope is a patient sinner.

Artist Richard Brown was having a particularly vexing period getting started on a painting of the Pope, and his frustration showed.

"You expect too much," Pope John XXIII reassured him.

"It took God six days to create the world. Don't try to judge your work on the second day."

Sure enough, after six sittings—plus hours of private work in the Vatican studio provided him—Brown completed the 7 by 6 foot portrait.

Then he returned to the United States with the portrait—the first of the Pope in North America, he says, authentically painted from life.

Brown's enthusiasm does not stem from the portrait, but from the rare experience of painting it.

"There were hundreds of Catholics in Rome—many of them priest—who did not get an audience with the Pope," he said.

"And there I was, an insignificant Protestant from Madison, Conn., give the run of the place."

Brown, 41, a Yale graduate and former instructor at Columbia and Syracuse, is not insignificant in American art circles.

His portrait of Mrs. Herbert Hoover hangs in the White House, and elsewhere displayed are portraits of Hoover and a number of high ranking prelates of his own Episcopal Church.

While casting about last spring for a new subject, Brown took a flyer and addressed a letter to Pope John. He enclosed a few photo samples of his work and promptly gave up any notion he would be accepted.

Later he was advised he could meet with the Pope for three 30 minute sittings.

The appointed limit of three sittings was stretched to six, more than accorded any other artist. Frequently he walked with the Pope in the Vatican gardens to study him more closely.

"This man of 78 some people call old has the step of an athlete and the most agile mind imaginable," Brown said. "Physically he is tireless, and he has a remarkable wit and sense of humor."

When the portrait was finished the Pope inspected it, Brown said, and cried "bravo, bravo." The Vatican photographer made a color picture of it for Brown which the Pope signed and stamped with his official seal. He also gave Brown his personal medal.

Brown has not yet disposed of the picture and its 18th century Venetian frame.

"I want it to hang in some Catholic institution," the artist said. "I think it would be only fitting."
